

ABSTRACT

An impact printer comprising pins for providing an impact and an impact force controller for changing the force with which the pins impact in accordance with the settings for characters that are to be printed. A form printer further including a drive unit and control means for controlling the drive unit is also provided. A method for controlling such a printer, is further included, which comprises the steps of identifying a character set to be printed and generating pin impact power according to the set.